

The background of the slide is a black and white aerial photograph of a coastal area. In the foreground, there are large, dark, rocky formations. Beyond them is a body of water, and in the distance, a coastline with some buildings and vegetation is visible. A red grid pattern is overlaid on the lower half of the image, starting from the bottom left and extending towards the right. The sky is filled with large, white, fluffy clouds.

Humanitarian GIS & Data Management

for international development, urbanism, and humanitarian action in challenging scenarios

Portfolio | claurt07.github.io/claudioDLRT

About Me

I am a geospatial specialist, urban researcher, and humanitarian data management lead bridging spatial analysis and ground-level action across built environments, disaster response, and complex crisis contexts. Backed by 10+ years of experience, I have managed projects in over 30 countries and conducted field data collection in more than 80. Currently at Humanitarian OpenStreetMap Team, I architect resilient data pipelines, research post-crisis damage detection, analyze urban morphology, and deploy open-source GIS tools globally.

Urban spatial assessment analyzing Cape Town's Transit-Oriented Development (TOD) and informal street market integration using ODK.

Re-Imagining Regeneration in Bellville, South Africa: Informality, Security, and the Realities of Transit-Oriented Spatial Restructuring

Bellville operates as the secondary Central Business District (CBD) of the City of Cape Town and the primary urban hub of the Vooitruiker Road Corridor Integration Zone (VRCIZ). While top-down municipal planning strategies envision Bellville as a high-density, Transit-Oriented Development (TOD) core, on-the-ground socioeconomic realities reveal a complex urban ecosystem characterized by informal tent markets, migrant economies, security-driven spatial policing, and socio-spatial displacement.

Long Island City Development

URBANISM / GIS

YEAR	2018
LOCATION	Queens, NYC
PARTNER	The New School
COORDS	40.7447° N, 73.9485° W
LINKS	Development Analysis

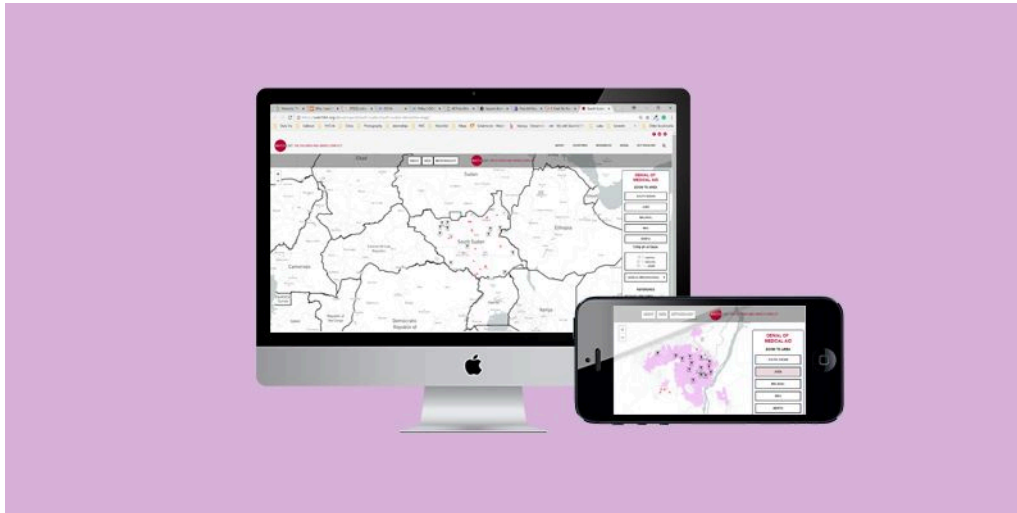

Layered narratives in Long Island City: a 2015 deep mapping study of real estate branding, urban rendering, and lived experience in Queens. This project examined competing narratives shaping Long Island City's rapid redevelopment through deep mapping—combining photography, interviews, social media analysis, and real estate marketing materials to trace how developer-led visions contradicted lived experience on the ground. The research revealed the gaps between glossy renderings and actual streetscapes, documenting how urban transformation unfolds as a palimpsest of competing visions where power, perception, and place collide.
